Houston Concern May Manufacture Round Bale Presses.

CHICAGO PLANT OVERTAXED.

Unable to Produce Machinery for Numerous New Locations.

LARGE NUMBER TO BE PLACED IN TEXAS

Report that Effort is Being Made to Secure Control of Gins Authoritatively Denied.

Negotiations are now pending as a result of which, in all likelihood, the American Cotton company will manufacture at Houston all of the machinery needed in its numerous Texas plants. The American Cotton company is the round bale concern, of which Mr. John E. Seales, late of the sugar trust, is president. It has recently become apparent that the manufacturing plant of the company at Chicago will not be equal to the enormous demands made upon it, and when Mr. Seales was in Houston during the early part of the present week the matter of the large amount of machinery which will be necessary to the operation of the 100 new plants, which will be placed in Texas this year was brought up. It would be manifestly impossible for the concern to erect a factory for the making of the machinery in question in time for this year's work, and Mr. Seales is consequently finding it advisable to look about for some plant already in operation at which the necessary machinery could be made. Birmingham, Ala., was first thought of, on account of its location, in the center of the Alabama iron region, and for the further reason that it enjoys other natural advantages, but while here Mr. Seales called at and inspected the plant of the Dickinson Iron Works in this city, and is now of the opinion that he need look no further. The Dickinson foundry and machine shops contain all the necessary apparatus for the manufacture of the comparatively simple machinery used in the round bale presses, and if the deal, which is now on, is consummated there is no doubt that the work will be done here. Mr. Seales was highly pleased with the complete and thorough methods in use at the Dickinson plant and was of the opinion that his machinery could be made there as well and as cheaply, if not more so, than at the place he had first in mind. The plant of the American Cotton company at Chicago is a very large one, and during Mr. Seales' connection with the sugar combine it supplied most of the machinery used in the various refineries of that concern. When Mr. Seales resigned his other interests and began to devote his time and attention exclusively to the cotton business, the Chicago factory was utilized for the manufacture of round bale cotton presses. The demands made upon it have been so enormous, however, that as stated above, it was found necessary to look elsewhere for relief. Mr. Seales' company has at the present nineteen plants in Texas, located respectively at Abilene, Alexander, Calvert, Columbus, Cuero, Itasca, Lockhart, Marion, Midford, San Antonio, Seguin, Sherman, Shiner, Temple, Venus, Waco, Wharton and Whitehouse. Contracts have been closed for the erection of twenty more in South Texas, to be located at Nacogdoches, Wallis, Brookhaven, Bay City, Eagle Lake, Ellington, Kyle, Austin, Elgin, Cameron, Burton, Giddings, Livingston, Cameron, Martindale, Staples, Mendota, Buda, Manchaca and Luling. Contracts for a like number in the northern section have been made and negotiations are pending for some sixty more in various portions of the State. Two presses are used at each of these plants, and it will thus be seen that a considerable amount of machinery will be required. The presses are comparatively simple in construction, but what there is to them must of necessity be connected with the round bale method. However, Houston would, of course, be benefited to a greater degree were the company to erect a plant of its own at this point, but as has already been explained, this is impossible at the present time. However, in view of the large amount of work being done in Texas and other Southern States, an independent plant here at some far distant date is within the range of possibility, and in the meantime the plans being made at present do not miscarry, a Houston concern will be given the contract. This of itself can not fall to be of advantage to the city, as it will mean the employment of additional labor, and in consequence, put more money in circulation.

Mr. B. P. McDonald, manager of the local office of the American Cotton company, expressed himself as being very hopeful of the consummation of the plans outlined above, when seen yesterday by a reporter for the Post. "Personally," said Mr. McDonald, "I would be more than glad to see the work done here, for several different reasons. We are doing all that we can to eradicate the feeling which exists against the round bale method, and I am of the opinion that if some of our manufacturing were done here it would help us along this line, as well as to put another finger in Houston's cap. We believe that the success of the round bale means a great deal to the cotton producer. It is a self evident fact that if the cost of handling and shipping cotton can be reduced to a minimum there must be profit, and we will undertake to prove in time that all of this profit will not go to the planter. We have no intention of crowding the compress men, or any one else, for that matter, out of the business, and, too, we must enter a general denial to the charge made against us to the effect that we will eventually handle all the cotton in the country to the exclusion of other buyers. We buy cotton that no one else will buy, and surely we can not be censured for that.

"In line with this statement I wish to say that the report sent out from this office to the effect that our agents were canvassing Lumber & Lumber for the purpose of securing options on gins, with the ultimate view of securing control of all of them, is entirely erroneous. We have no desire to acquire the property in question. In fact, were it possible at this time, we would be more than glad to place many of our plants in the State in the hands of others. We have a standing offer to ginners which tends to prove this. We furnish the presses and accessory parts and the ginners place them in their establishments, paying for their use of them 25 cents per hundred pounds of cotton baled in the presses. Further, we guarantee a market for the product at a price which will give the ginners a reasonable profit over the cost of his rental. The prejudice against the system will, I think, vanish when the people of the South fully understand what we have to offer them."

Mr. W. S. Anderson, an attaché of the local office of the company, returned yesterday from Austin, where he has been on business connected with the bill recently introduced in the house, having for its purpose the placing of a tax on the round bale cotton. "This tax," said Mr. Anderson, "is so high that should the bill pass we could not possibly operate in the State. However, we are doing what we can to place the matter before the legislature in its proper light, and we are hopeful of good results. A number of farmers from all portions of the State have been written their respective senators and representatives of the benefits which have accrued to them through the round bale system, and we have so much faith in the good sense and justice of the lawmakers that we have but little fear as to the ultimate result."

WORK OF THE FAITH HOME

WHAT HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED BY THIS ASSOCIATION.

How the Ladies Have Relieved Much Suffering—The Contributions to The Post's Fund.

In her annual address the president of the Faith Home association said to the ladies assembled:

"I feel you are my friends, and in pursuit of our common cause, hand in hand and heart to heart, we have gone on, month by month, year by year, discouraged often, doubting, even faithless again and again, yet hoping always and striving for the building of our cause, the perfect development of our chosen work."

In the carrying out of this great, grand work the ladies of the Faith Home association have erected a $11,000 building in Houston, which is to be a home for helpless little children.

The debt of $2500 that hangs over this building is a great hindrance to the association, and The Post has called upon the people of Houston to remove this burden. When this is done the ladies can continue their work in behalf of the homeless little ones with lighter, happier hearts.

If you can't afford to send a large amount to help on this work, don't hesitate to send a small one. Give whatever you can. No matter how little it is, it will be something to aid this blessed work in the cause of humanity.

Now that the employees in the auditor's office of the Houston and Texas Central railroad have sent $7 to be added to the fund, it is hoped that the men in other railroad offices will take up collections for the Faith Home.

Don't delay your offering. Send a Faith Home contribution to The Post today.

To the Editor of The Post, Houston, Texas, February 15.—Enclosed $5 for the Faith Home fund. Yours respectfully, J. P. Moore.

To the Lot Owners of Glenwood Cemetery.

I regret exceedingly that I am forced to make another public appeal to you to pay the assessments due on your lots. I earnestly desire to make some improvements in Glenwood that will beautify and adorn the cemetery, and be permanent in character. This can not be done without means, and, as the main source of revenue is from the assessments, I urgently request you to promptly pay same, if you are able to do so. I am sure that you will be glad to do so, as it will enable me to accomplish my purpose. If you are unable to pay, I will be glad to place your lot in a plan of improvement, and make the place where he himself would find a final repose one of beauty and respectability.

It is with deep mortification that I make this statement, that the majority of the lot owners who have paid the assessments did so under compulsion of death in their families or among their relatives and friends. It is far better that you pay your assessments as they become due, and not wait until the time of sorrow and distress, thus having added to your affliction the anxious care of a hasty provision for the burial of your dead. I wish I had the power and eloquence to so present this matter to you that it might stir the deepest and tenderest sensibilities of your nature and impel you to the performance of the sacred duty. One of the best illustrations of the refinement, virtue and intelligence of a people is the care they bestow upon "God's Acre."

INJURIOUS FASHIONS.

Effects of Arsenic and Belladonna on the Eyesight.

DOTTED VEILS CAUSE EYE TROUBLES.

Dr. Seymour Relates Some Facts in Regard to So-Called "Eye Brighteners."

Fashion, whose slaves many women are, is responsible for many ills that flesh is heir to. It matters not how absurd the style may be, nor how unbecoming or uncomfortable, there will always be found enough women, and men, too, for that matter, to bow in slavish submission to whatever the latest decrees of their goddess may happen to be.

One fashion alone is responsible for many cases of eye troubles and this is the habit of wearing veils covered with thickly sprinkled dots, which frequently cause a confusion of the sight that is often very irritating to the retina. Heavy veils are always detrimental, as it requires an extra effort of the eye to pierce the veil, and this unnatural tax upon the vision, and veils of even fine mesh are apt to come in contact with the eye lashes and produce irritation, resulting often in sore eyes.

Veils, however, will always be worn, because of their seductive charm, and if care is used in their selection they can be made to answer a useful purpose. On the whole I commend the practice of the Moorish ladies, whose veils are draped in such a manner as to hide all the face except their magnificent eyes, which dazzle away from their brilliancy. Perhaps this fashion may yet become the style among our own ladies, who may see in this mode of wearing the veil, unlimited possibilities in the way of hiding the face, whose execution is all the more effective because the fairer is more or less incognito, and while we would regret to be denied a full view of their pretty faces, it would be much better for their eyes than the present fashion of wearing them. Perhaps a huge dot directly in front of one eye, which, besides giving a woman a most grotesque appearance, is decidedly injurious to her sight.

In their desire to be beautiful, which is a perfectly natural one, women will run great risks and will experiment with the most dangerous remedies, with a total disregard of consequences. The practice of using eye drops for the purpose of lending a luster to the eyes, which is very much to be condemned, as these drops contain nothing more nor less than belladonna, the effect of which is to greatly dilate the pupil and give the eye the much coveted dark ring about the iris. This practice, if indulged in for very long, results in very serious consequences, as the effect on the eye is usually a spasmodic condition of the iris, which is apt to become permanent and which, if not cured, will result in blindness. The eye is so delicate an organ, and the means of enhancing their good looks, the use of arsenic as a beautifier also tells very seriously on the sight and should not only be avoided, but the eye should be kept in its natural condition, and the eye should be kept in its natural condition, and the eye should be kept in its natural condition.

Every woman should realize that her health is like a bank account. At the outset she has so much deposited to her credit in the bank of health. If she draws out more than she puts in she will soon overdraw her account. An overdrawn account in the bank of health means one of two things, a life of hopeless suffering or an early death.

The woman who neglects her health in a womanly way is making big drafts on her account with the bank of health and will soon be a physical bankrupt. Disorders of this description wreck a woman's general health quicker than anything else in the world. They soon transform a healthy, happy, amiable woman into a weak, sickly, fretful and despondent invalid. They utterly unfit a woman for motherhood or motherhood. For all disorders of this nature Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all medicines. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in maternity, giving them health, strength, vigor and elasticity. It relieves pain, always inflammation, checks debilitating drains, and quickly subdues all other symptoms. It at once stops the dragging pains and sinking spells, the nervousness, the digestive disturbances and other complications that arise from the same cause. Taken during the months of expectant maternity, it banishes the usual discomforts and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It insures the new-comer's health and a plentiful supply of nourishment. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits. An honest dealer will not suggest an inferior substitute for the sake of extra profit.
